Fallout 4 ini files are not the same as,Old St. Nicholas (Bruett) The Old St. Nicholas, also known as the Bruett-Wheeler House, is a historic house at 12 E. Maple Street in Auburn, Maine. Built in 1807 for a prominent local builder, it is one of the oldest structures in the city, and one of the city's few surviving 18th-century buildings. It was listed on the National Register of Historic Places in 2005. Description and history The Old St. Nicholas is located on the west side of Maple Street in the village of Auburn, overlooking the St. James River valley. It is a three-story wood frame structure, with a gambrel roof, clapboard siding, and a stone foundation. The front is five bays wide, with the entrance in the rightmost bay. All windows are six sash windows, with three pairs of sash. The front gable is a truncated octagonal porch, and there is a round-arch window in the peak above. The house faces south, and has a shed-roof addition projecting to the rear. The interior follows a plan typical of 18th-century townhouses in the region. The 18th-century-style front door is framed by pilasters and topped by an entablature. The entrance hall has a high ceiling, and leads to a small room at the left of the main stair hall, and two bedrooms on the right. The main stairway has a winding wooden spiral. The upper level is accessed via a narrow winding stair. The attic space is finished in tongue-and-groove beams. The Old St. Nicholas is one of the oldest buildings in the city of Auburn, and is one of its last surviving residential structures of the 18th century.
