It would be able to put into the new and empty index name the name of the index that you don't wish to be displayed. Example: `df = pd.DataFrame({'value':[1,2,3],'index':[1,2,3]})`
`df.index.name_level_0.name = ""`
`df`
value index
0 1 1 1 2 2 2 3 3
Will give you this:
index 0 1 1 2 2 3
And you can see the old index is gone. If you wish for the index to always be displayed, you can add the previously mentioned line on top of your existing code. Alternatively, you can delete index without naming it, and just add the following on top: `df = df.set_index(['index'])`
Output: value index
1 1 2 2 3 3
