Whaley's Bank, NatAm Bank, Washington National Bank, Portland National Bank, and National Westminster Bank was a series of banknotes issued by several banks, usually in the American Northwest. Many of these notes were simply called "Bank Notes" and are no longer in circulation. The Bank of America, Universal Bank, and R.S. Whaley's Bank (Oregon) were initially chartered in 1860. The NatAm Bank was founded in 1872, and the Portland National Bank was founded in 1883. The Washington National Bank was founded in 1908. The "National" in the name of these banks relates to the National Bank Act of 1863 which allowed a number of state-chartered banks to merge into larger ones under federal supervision. The first bank to be federally chartered was the First National Bank of Cincinnati in 1845. This bank's name was changed to the National Bank of the State of Ohio in 1849 and to the First National Bank in 1875.
