Also, it has been explained that less is more – there are a few basic things that need to be added to any composition before sending. Never forget to adhere to these details. Spelling – Spelling errors are the common mistakes that everyone makes. Though the message would convey the correct meaning, the spelling has to be right. Note – Cues that are added are also necessary. A memo line is a good example of this. A little touch of good stuff makes all the difference. Sending Timely Messages – People would appreciate it if you manage to send messages at the right time. This would be preferable because people would be available to read your message at the time specified by you. This is actually very important as it encourages people to engage in more correspondence with you. Get Instant Access to this Report You have Successfully Subscribed!
