In this tutorial, you'll learn how to create a photo manipulated from scratch in Photoshop. You'll even learn how to add your own text. As you go, you'll make your own edits with these powerful tools, as well as learn what Photoshop is capable of. Once you've completed this tutorial, you'll have a solid introduction to Photoshop and will be able to use it as a creative tool for your future projects. Step 1: Open a Photo Begin by opening any image that you wish to manipulate. At a minimum, a photo with text is needed, but there's no rule as to what you must use. For a lesson in text creation, use the same image used in this tutorial and consider the text you can create to go with it. Step 2: Convert Your Image to Black and White First, make sure you've opened the image in Photoshop. When open, you need to convert the color to black and white. To do this, click Window > Adjustments > Levels or go to Adjustments > Levels. After Levels opens, click the dialog box and choose Black and White, as seen below, or by using the "Black & White" buttons on the middle of your workspace. Use the sliders to enter the desired percentage of black and white in the photo. If you're working on a single image, use 100 percent. If you're working on a group of images, use a value that's between 25 percent and 75 percent. (The black slider uses the values 0 and 255 for each pixel, which represents white and black, respectively. The white slider uses values 0 and 255 for each pixel, which represents white and black, respectively. The gray slider uses values in between 0 and 255 for each pixel.) Finally, click OK. Step 3: Create a New Layer Because you'll be working on a new layer, use "Layers > New" or press ctrl+n. Use the dialog box, as seen below, or simply click New Layer. Enter a name for the new layer. The default name will do, but for clarity, we'll type "Text" in the dialog box. (The New Layer dialog box is shown below.) Step 4: Add Text to Your Text Layer Now we'll add some text. To do this, select text via the keyboard (the default method of selection) and then position the text over the

All you need to know about OC's Tim Burt's prescription error which led to his guilty plea Former Ocean County Prosecutor Joseph Coronato (left) accepts a graduation ring from former PC Sheriff Steven Coleman at MCAS Intrinsic in Toms River, NJ on Monday, November 1, 2008. Coronato retired last month. Coronato was convicted for his role in the Asbury Park cocaine bust. The verdict is expected in November. (Photo by Brian Merron/Northjersey.com) Former Ocean County Prosecutor Joseph Coronato, seen in this 2009 file photo, has pleaded guilty to lying about his role in a 2008 drug bust that resulted in the seizure of $4.2 million in drugs. The story broke in August, when the Asbury Park Press reported that Coronato and ex-Ocean County sheriff Steven Coleman pleaded guilty last month to falsifying records to cover up their conspiracy in a massive drug bust. The bust was one of the largest in New Jersey history, resulting in the seizure of $4.2 million worth of cocaine, marijuana, ecstasy, heroin and a number of prescription drugs. The massive bust which involved the sale of two kilos of cocaine, caught the attention of the Obama administration which, along with New Jersey law enforcement, launched a large-scale investigation against the drug organization. In the course of their investigation, Coronato and Coleman met with White House officials in the summer of 2008 and they were debriefed by federal authorities about the investigation, according to court records. A sealed agreement between the two men and the Department of Justice also said Coronato was assisting in the investigation and Coronato had authority over the wiretap, which led to the investigation. Coronato also lied about Coleman's involvement in the investigation, which he had knowledge of. On Nov. 13, 2013, Coronato, 47, pleaded guilty to one count of lying to a federal investigation and was sentenced to five years in federal prison on Jan. 14, 2014. Coronato's lawyer, Richard L. Goldner, said he was investigating the possibility of filing an appeal of the sentence. Coronato and Coleman, 58, were suspended without pay in August. Coronato was the first prosecutor in Ocean County, who has worked for the state since 1979. He was appointed to the position in 2000 by then-

This Is Us has provided a glimpse into a number of the characters' personal lives in the run-up to the Christmas-time episode, and now a new photo has been released which shows that the family will go on an adventure for at least a couple of days. The photo, from last week's episode, sees the Pearson clan board a plane with Toby (Michael Angarano) and Kate (Chrissy Metz) looking comfortable in their seats. Eileen (Susan Kelechi Watson) looks relieved to be away from the kids. (Picture: This Is Us/NBC) Not to mention having a few drinks – we're guessing it's because Toby's birthday was the previous day. While he doesn't look too happy about it, possibly still bummed about the flop of his business venture, or the fact he has to share his birthday with Kate? We'll have to wait until Tuesday's episode to see how the storyline continues, but there's no doubt that the Pearson family will have fun this winter on the way to meet Michael's parents. This Is Us airs on NBC on Tuesday at 9pm. Got a showbiz story? The Trump administration has drastically cut down the number of refugees the US government is willing to admit. To make matters worse, the 3,000 refugees from Iraq and Syria that were already in the US have just been refused entry back to their home country. This comes as another supposed "invasion" — Iraq — is underway. But this time, instead of a US invasion, it is the Iraqi refugees that are the invaders, going from war-torn country to war-torn country. With aid groups — even an Iraqi Nobel Prize-winning doctor — warning that refugees are just ♦
