Local Multi-Player - Play with your friends in the ultimate FIFA experience!

Q: Best way to restore user accounts when a custom install is not going to be used? I was wondering what the best way to restore user accounts (local admin accounts) would be if the new version does not have a UI for restoring accounts during installation? The only UI that I found was to use the User Accounts Wizard. After that process, would it be best to just delete any administrator accounts that were added since the installation of the original version of the program? A: By best I think you mean most efficient in terms of time. Firstly, let's say that you took 100 users offline and in addition to your original installation there is an additional rollback with the option to reinstall local admin accounts. If I was a typical user, I would stand by and be patient, look at my options and if they were presented to me I'd say "sure, why not". In terms of saving user accounts, which is where you're going to save them, you have several options. If you used the MSI database tables to store the information (e.g. on a SQLite database) you would lose the information in that respect if you moved on to the new version. You can create a user account using the User Accounts Wizard which I believe will allow you to create these accounts and add them

What's new in Fifa 22:

- Dribbling: Create new attacking moves - Actions within the game - such as passing, shooting, dribbling and more - are now useable on the pitch. These actions can be used to help players complete specific goals, or to create new creative opportunities.
- Selection transitions - The user interface for the tactical choices available to players have been reworked. Players will now see a slight visual transition after selecting a new favourite defender.
- Improved manager intelligence - Stat analysis has been greatly enhanced - with a new AI logic tree that will more accurately simulate the way players and managers make decisions during a match.
- Fully-reimagined stadiums - New stadiums have been introduced in England, Scotland, Brazil, Ireland, Italy, and Spain. Custom, national and licensed stadium kits have also been reimagined in the game.
- Major improvement in goalkeepers -

Goalkeepers are now more than three times better at handling crosses. Defending headers have also been improved.

- Fantastic storytelling - New moments of highs and lows when competing against legendary opponents have been added to the game - or even gaining your very first experience of a difficult fixture. Several leagues around the world are reflected in the game - and significant characters from their clubs and their community are now on a journey with you.
- New depth in Move Leaderboards - Up to 16 leagues are represented and, as movement continues to develop, more and more real league fixtures will be available. Move leaderboards reflect the reality of the performance of each player - You can see whether you're consistently moving through the ranks, or whether you're some way behind.
- Thematic playfield - The grass on the pitch has been rethought, as have the surfaces of the goalposts and nets. Goalies are now reactive to the ball moving into each goal, and have more situational awareness.
- New animations and player likenesses - The sights, smells and sounds of the stadium have all been improved, including crowd chants and stadium announcements. New animations have been implemented for goalkeepers and goalposts.

- Improved options menu - A brand-new user interface makes some aspects of game set-up easier to understand. Control setups have been improved and a minor in-game start-up screen
