If you don't know how to do this, no amount of color correction or other automation will save you in the long run. Adjusting exposure, color saturation, and sharpness is necessary to create a good-looking image, but you must also make sure that it is in sharp focus. Because digital photography produces such a large amount of data in a short amount of time, a technique you develop now to make that data as sharp as possible will last you a long time. Effect of zileuton on interleukin 6, interleukin 8, tumor necrosis factor α, and C-reactive protein levels in patients with peripheral arterial disease. Inflammatory markers are associated with an increased risk of atherosclerosis. Recent findings suggest that the enzyme 5-lipoxygenase (5-LO) may play a role in atherosclerosis. The efficacy of 5-LO inhibitors in atherosclerosis is, however, still controversial. We conducted this study to investigate the effect of the 5-LO inhibitor zileuton on the blood concentrations of inflammatory markers. In 40 patients with peripheral arterial disease, we measured in a placebo-controlled, double-blind, crossover manner interleukin (IL) 6, IL-8, and tumor necrosis factor (TNF)α and C-reactive protein (CRP) levels. Mean baseline levels (95% confidence interval) of IL-6, IL-8, TNFα, and CRP were 4.5 pg/mL (2.1-8.0 pg/mL), 20.8 pg/mL (8.3-37.3 pg/mL), 1.4 pg/mL (0.5-2.5 pg/mL), and 0.9 mg/L (0.4-2.1 mg/L), respectively. Zileuton reduced IL-6, IL-8, TNFα, and CRP levels to 4.2 pg/mL (1.5-9.1 pg/mL), 17.7 pg/mL (9.2-32.0 pg/mL), 0.8 pg/mL (0.3-1.4 pg/mL), and 0.7 mg/L (0.2-1.4 mg/L), respectively (difference: -26% [-1.5, -50%], -43% [-17, -70%], -36% [-0.9, -72%], and -38% [-9, -72%], respectively, p There is still a lot to learn about the Sun's birth, but scientists now have an eye-opening new view of the birth of one of the hottest objects in the sky. The cover photo for the book The Monuments Men, featuring Robert M. Edsel and William Stout, published in April 2014 Something strange happened at the beginning of the spring of 1944. The Allies had been aiming to liberate as many parts of the former German empire as possible—Stalingrad and the Crimea were already taken, and other key cities—but suddenly, they stepped back from the fight. The Germans had been pushed back to France, and then the Allied lines had moved back again, along the Mediterranean. In the spring of 1944, they were being pushed back down into Italy. And now it seemed as though the Allies were about to allow the Nazis to reshape the European map the way they wanted. What was that all about? The men who would become known as The Monuments Men were there to answer that question. They were the officers and soldiers of the Allied forces—the Americans and British, the French and the Poles—who went deep behind the front to save the cultural riches that the Nazis would otherwise destroy. Sometimes they saved the art—because they were on the side of the people who made it, but other times they saved the architecture—because they were taking a stand against the people who had destroyed it. Today we're going to look at the most famous of these men, and see what he had to say about his work. "I like the smell of a good fire," Robert M. Edsel wrote in his book The Monuments Men: Allied Heroes or Nazi Thieves?. The words are from a letter Edsel wrote home to his wife, but they sum up his work on that early 1944 tour. He knew
