Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit upheld the district court's conclusion that Plaintiff's registration of its marks was infringement of Defendant's marks. 19 The Third Circuit did reverse the district court's conclusion that Plaintiff's mark was "common law" infringement.

Playboy magazine (or pornographic magazines in general) are one of the most notable sexually explicit media publications in the history of the United States. The magazine is considered to be a major player in the pornography industry, and has published a large number of popular pornographic photographs that have been considered art. Playboy magazine was the official magazine for the X-rated film company Playboy Enterprises, which was founded in 1953 by Hugh Hefner.

Hefner was a successful businessman, and his company was very successful in publishing the Playboy magazine. But the success of the company spawned a problem in the mid-1990s. The success of the company also attracted copyright lawsuits against the magazine itself and the magazine's employees. Over the years,

Playboy Enterprises has had to pay over $100 million in law suit settlements, and the company's financial situation has been difficult. In 2004, Hugh Hefner decided to sell Playboy magazine. But the magazine was in very poor condition. In order for the company to have a chance at selling the magazine, the company needed to get rid of the lawsuits and the bad reputation of the company. To do this, Hugh Hefner developed the Playboy Enterprises spin off company, Playboy Media Holdings, Inc.. In 2004, Hugh Hefner sold the company. After the sale, the company changed its name to Playboy Enterprises, Inc. (PEI). PEI then sought to change the name of the company to Playboy Enterprises. In order to protect the trademark PEI applied for trademark protection on Playboy Enterprises. PEI filed with the United States Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO) for trademark protection in May of 2004. In this application, PEI claimed that it has "used the mark in commerce since its first use on or about June 1, 1953." PE
