I want to get the IP address of the device making the request to my server so I can decide whether or not to reply to it. I need to know this information to set up a DHCP which assigns the IP address as per the device MAC address. I've looked into GetMyIP() but it only returns the default IP address I'm assuming. I can't rely on GetMyIP() as it doesn't update with the last IP address/MAC address assigned to the device. A: It seems you're looking for the MAC address of the router (or other device) handling the request, not for the IP address of the requestor itself. [EDIT] To get the MAC address of the router handling the request, you have to look for the MAC address associated with a particular network interface (not of the whole device). Wireshark can help you there: Structural features of thylakoid membranes from photosynthetic thylakoids. Obligate heterotrophic bacteria have evolved to combine chloroplast-like thylakoids with a photosynthetic metabolism to synthesize their own essential components. In this study, we have focused on the preparation and investigation of the ultrastructure of thylakoid membranes obtained from two representatives of the group of closely related Gram-positive bacteria, Bacillus subtilis and B. megaterium. Both exhibit a light-dependent electron transport reaction and have chlorophylls a and b as the major photosynthetic pigments. A detailed analysis of the thylakoids of B. megaterium DSM 350 revealed that the membranes consist of two concentric thylakoid membranes surrounding the two membranes of the photosynthetic apparatus. The stroma-side thylakoids are inserted into two monolayers of the outer membrane, whereas the lumen-side thylakoids face the periplasmic space. The lumen-side thylakoids are arranged into ribbon-like structures that terminate in the stromal space and are connected

In org mode, when I insert an image using the import function, I am shown the image size. However, there is no information showing that image's date (last version, so to speak). Where is the information stored? A: I think this was recently discussed on the mailing list of your distribution, the general idea being that this information is stored in a database. You can see that myself and Thomas both have that as a recent issue on the Org-Mode mailing list (in comments and my answer, respectively). But the best way to find out is probably to ask your distribution or mail the list. Q: settimeout shows error in chrome? Im trying to use setTimeout method to call a timeout function after 2 second.
