By exmemanal.Q: Passing parameters to event I created a document object and I want to pass parameters to the event pageBuild: Ext.define('MyApp.view.Main', { extend: 'Ext.panel.Panel', alias: 'widget.main', title: 'Main' }); var doc = new MyApp.view.Main(); doc.initComponent(); doc.pageBuild = function(param1, param2) { //some code }; But I'm getting this error message: Uncaught TypeError: Cannot set property 'pageBuild' of undefined A: You need to define a constructor for Main that takes the pageBuild function as a parameter: Ext.define('MyApp.view.Main', { extend: 'Ext.panel.Panel', alias: 'widget.main', title: 'Main' constructor: function(config) { this.callParent(arguments); this.pageBuild = function(param1, param2) { console.log("hi param1: " + param1 + " | param2: " + param2); } } }); var doc = new MyApp.view.Main(); doc.initComponent(); doc.pageBuild("x", "y"); Q: Two three digit natural numbers a and b such that $a \cdot b$ is divisible by 999 Let a, b be natural numbers such that $a \cdot b = 999k$, where $k \in \mathbb{N}$ Question: Does there exist such two three-digit natural numbers a and b e79caf774b body.Q: i don't understand the mysql_fetch_array() function I'm trying to create a very simple contact list app, I've been fiddling with this for a while and I just cant figure out why this works, but works, but doesn't work. My database connection is working fine, I'm connecting correctly, and dumping the info out seems to show the data as expected. Why, however, when I try and echo out the results, does it just return nothing? As far as the database goes, it looks like this: id firstname lastname 1 Test Jones 2 Steve Test 3 Tony Test Here is my page: if(isset(\$_POST['submit'])) { \$firstname = \$_POST['firstname']; \$lastname = \$_POST['lastname']; \$sql = "SELECT * FROM users WHERE firstname = '\$firstname' and lastname = '\$lastname'"; \$result = mysql_query(\$sql); \$display = mysql_fetch_array(\$result, MYSQL_NUM); echo "Number

The effect of obestatin on endometrial gene expression in non-pregnant ewes. Obestatin is a 26-amino acid peptide which is produced in the stomach and intestine. The aim of the present study was to identify the target organ for the action of this peptide. The effect of obestatin on endometrial and decidual gene expression in non-pregnant sheep was investigated. The concentrations of endometrial OB-R and cGMP-binding protein mRNA were increased by in situ hybridization 24 h after the infusion of obestatin, and endometrial vasodilator-stimulated phosphoprotein mRNA was increased by Northern blot analysis. In contrast, no significant changes in obestatin concentrations in the plasma were observed during the experiment. The present results suggest that the endometrium is a target organ for obestatin. Users are increasingly utilizing unmanned aerial vehicles (UAV) for performing a variety of tasks, including by way of example and not limitation, surveying, mapping, utility inspection, and the like. There are several manufacturers and system providers of UAVs, and the UAVs may be used in a variety of applications. UAVs may be small and light enough to fly indoors or through dense foliage. Many UAVs are powered by electric motors, particularly brushless motors having permanent magnets. The motors may be controlled by processing circuitry coupled with a variety of position and/or speed feedback sensors. Other UAVs may be tethered to a ground station such that the UAV is grounded to the ground station by a radio signal or other form of communication. Control of a UAV by a ground station may be primarily accomplished by sending a control signal to the UAV that controls the direction and/or motion of the UAV in a pre-determined pattern. Some UAVs are capable of transmitting or receiving control signals, such that the UAV may be controlled by a corresponding control circuit on the ground station. However, different manufacturers and system providers may have varying types of UAVs having differing characteristics, where some UAVs may not be readily amenable to being controlled by existing control circuits.
