This might not appeal to all, but if you grew up with any love for Bubble Bobble, or similar single screen platformers, I totally recommend Robbotto." Third Coast Review "Whether playing solo or co-op, Robbotto is a great pick for fans of Bubble Bobble and other retro arcade classics.” Indiehangover “Overall, Robbotto is a crisp game that’s easy to pick up whenever and wherever you want. It’s always fun to have a friend with you but it’s challenging enough with just yourself. It’s certainly a game to go back to again and again.” 8/10 – Miketendo64

Story: A single, seemingly ordinary town by the sea. Kagawa Prefecture, central Japan. Hinamizawa is small, and has always been small. The two thousand or so people who live there eke out a living by fishing and farming. Everyone there, well, knows everyone else. And everyone is in everyone's debt. Everyone knows the rules. Miyo Amamiya is an only child. She has grown up there, and is like everyone else. But since a car accident a year ago she suffers migraines and sees pink lights. And sometimes she loses time. It is rumored that she visits other worlds. When she was twelve, Miyo was abducted, and she disappeared. But that's not the end of the story. The Car Accident: Four years ago, on a hot summer's night. Miyo Amamiya lived with her parents in the village of Hinamizawa. At the age of twelve, she was sent to help an elderly neighbor. "Miyo! There's a problem!" said Kiku, the neighbor, pulling on her shirt. "Miyo!" Miyo ignored her, and went back inside. Miyo's mother moaned. "She can't be doing this again." She let it pass, and returned to her work. Miyo went up to the attic, where her father's workshop was. At the age of twelve, Miyo had already started to design and build tiny cars. The cars did not have pedals or gas pedals, but rather batteries. The cars could run anywhere the owner wished. There was even a kind of networked system. When a car was about to run out of power, it automatically switched to the nearest station that had power. This happened even when a person wasn't looking. Miyo was hooked up to it. When Miyo's father went out for a walk, Miyo quickly jumped onto her own car, and went off for a spin around the village. Afterwards, Miyo was seen walking, relaxed. A little while later, her father had gotten back. The car that Miyo's father had been riding in was crushed. It was all over the news. c9d1549cdd

Race 5 - Melbourne to Perth Phil James - "We know Australia pretty well. If you look at the weather forecast, it will be very, very hot. Here in Perth we have a high point of around 42 degrees and we sit on the coast and in the winter months that depends on the sea breeze. You'll be sitting in the car waiting for the sea breeze to come in and blow across the circuit and on the first day it was blowing out to that direction so we've got some work to do on the setup to allow for that. The best way to describe it is it's a cross between African desert and tropical and it's certainly wet and muddy and sometimes it turns into a sl

It is also advised that you use the 'O' button to evade. There will be also some objects, when you touch them or grab them, they will disappear or cause switches. There will also be some injuries that will happen to the character, and some scenes will be shown, that will be skipped, when they are not necessary.
