Society 2011,.The present invention relates to the field of olefin metathesis and especially to the field of olefin metathesis for the production of polymers. The teaching of U.S. Pat. No. 6,596,733 shows that the catalyst can be in the form of a supported catalyst.
The patent claims a support to be of silica, alumina or zirconia but no method is given to deposit supported metals on these supports. It is known that the catalyst as described can be supported on a silica substrate but this is not the supported catalyst of the invention. The synthesis of supported catalysts in general is known and a wide variety of supports can be used, for instance any porous medium that can be activated by a treatment to introduce the support with one or more metal compounds. The supported catalysts prepared by this method are given in wide variety of application. The supported catalyst as disclosed in U.S.
Pat. No. 6,596,733 shows that the supported catalyst can be activated by treatment with a solvent and an alkyl aluminium. In the present invention there is no need for this activation step. The supported catalysts prepared by this method are given in wide variety of application. In many cases however, the supported catalysts have a low capacity for olefin metathesis reactions. The method of the invention shows that there is a high advantage in the preparation of supported catalysts for olefin metathesis reactions. U.S. Pat. No. 5,717,063 claims a supported catalyst comprising a dispersion of an unsupported complex of a transition metal on a silica support wherein said metal can be selected from the group consisting of ruthenium, osmium 0cc13bf012
