Q: Convert java sql Date to java calendar Hello i need to convert a java sql Date to a Java Calendar. Right now i'm doing something like: SimpleDateFormat formatter = new SimpleDateFormat("MM/dd/yyyy"); java.util.Calendar cal = new java.util.Calendar(); cal.setTime(formatter.parse("3/12/2011")); this code returns me a null value in the "cal" parameter. What i'm missing? A: You are setting calendar to the time, but this is the date. Change the first line to cal.setTime(formatter.parse("3/12/2011")); and it should work. A: I would recommend you to use Joda Time instead of java.util. Joda Time provide more accurate and flexible date and time handling facilities. If it is not sufficient for your needs, then go for JSR 310 This is one of the built-in java date and time support classes which is part of J2SE-5.0. All of the species except Bacillus licheniformis and Bacillus stearothermophilus were isolated from the dust samples from 12 of the 49 dwellings.Q: Adding widgets to layout inflating dynamically I try to add widgets to some layouts inflating only the layouts in runtime. The reason I decided to do this is, that I need to have labels, or widgets added to the layouts, which should be inflated from res/values/strings.xml. But when I try to add something to a Layout through setContentView(R.layout.layout) it resizes the whole layout and the not right widgets are not shown. Does anyone have an idea how to add widget to a layout dynamically inflating it from a string? Here is my code so far: private LayoutInflater inflater = LayoutInflater
