part of any English language speaker's vocabulary. Just like Mr. Li, Chinese people have their own calendar that goes by the same name.
But the two calendars are not the same. In the English calendar, February 2 is Valentine's Day. Chinese people follow the Chinese calendar which carries a different name for the same day. In Chinese, it is called Yue-yue-chun-feng (literally: the Male Month of Love and Fiance). This Chinese expression refers to the marriage of the male who vowed to marry the woman the groom would choose in return for the wedding gifts and support. The implication is that the bride is kept from seeing the man who proposed to her as a woman to marry. In Chinese culture, February 3 is considered to be the day the girl says yes or no. According to Chinese folklore, a woman who rejects the marriage proposal of the man of her choice will meet a bad end in her future life. The Oxford University Press has published a translation of a famous Chinese poem, An Open Box, which reveals the Chinese/Danish love story of eight centuries ago. It says, "I love you without knowing how or why / I found you in the open box. / You are my only one / And I am your only one / And we are not his only one /

But are so lovely / That we were the one in the open box." What many Chinese people don't know is that Chinese calendar has more than one hundred lunar festivals. It is a Chinese custom to display beautiful flowers and ask well-wishes in these festivals. They are also called xuantian, which means "God-alone" in Chinese. In a short video, a Chicago-based Chinese design team in the U.S. takes us on a colorful tour of China. In their video, we watched how Chinese people do worship on the Chinese New Year. All over the nation, it is the time to visit family or do gift exchanges. The holiday that has the greatest weight in Chinese culture is the Chinese New Year. On this

I was just browsing on this site and this is what I came across. I've done my homework and now I'm going to do my reading. I am also going to do the same thing with every book that I read. Not just the books that I read that are allowed to be reviewed, but the books that I read just for me. Good luck on your journey. I just finished reading BLACK SCIENCE by James Ellroy. I don't know if I have a review up yet on my blog but I'll do my best to post it up sometime. I just wanted to mention that, although it was tough going at times, it was very well-written and very well-entertaining. I'm just curious. How did you all come up with the title? Oh, and I think it's a good idea to write down the books that you've read. I've seen that you can just add a post to that you've finished reading so that those who may not be interested in that kind of thing can avoid seeing all that information. :) I loved that book. Although I think I liked it more than you did. What do you mean when you say it was tough going at times? It was really exciting and intense. I'm going to try and do the same thing. Probably won't post it on my blog but I'll just make a post on facebook. I'd hate to post all that information on public view where everyone can see it. Oh good! I've just started reading BLACK SCIENCE. I don't remember how I came up with the title. Well, when I was a kid I used to write a journal. But I don't have it anymore. I think I'm going to buy another book and maybe make a journal. I just think it would be a lot of fun to write down what I read. I think that would be fun. I mean, I go through my 6d1f23a050
