Intel Integrated Graphics as the monitor to connect laptop to TV via HDMI I'm a newby to linux. I'm trying to connect my laptop to my telly (Samsung LED) via HDMI. My graphics card is Intel Integrated Graphics. If I let Ubuntu detect the display, it detects my telly correctly, but I'm unable to use the laptop display as a monitor. I'm using Ubuntu 14.04, and I tried connecting as well as using the settings to auto-detect. I have only tried using the most basic way and my desktop displays on the telly, but I cannot see my laptop desktop. The resolution is not right. How can I get this working? A: I have the same problem but I find solution. When you connect laptop to TV, if Ubuntu display settings don't work, you can run the following commands. (I'm also using intel video card) 6d1f23a050
