Keygen.Wednesday, December 11, 2013 Low Carb/Cutting Pans - My Thoughts Lately I have been doing some things to get back on track with weight loss. I have gained a bit of weight over the last year, not a lot and I am thinking that is why my pants have been fitting a little tight. I started going out last week and had 3 meals from Wingstop and Lettuce Entertain You (I love the lettuce wrap). During the meal the two girls I ate with asked me about my pants and how tight they were. Being the smart girl that I am I started to ask them to measure my waist with their tape measure. I think I got my panties in a twist for the next several weeks, but after the last two weeks of eating all those meal I realized that I am actually starting to lose a bit of weight and my pants do feel a little looser. I don't know if this is going to be a permanent change or if I will gain it back but I am taking this as an opportunity to make a change in my eating. I know we are all told to eat healthy but sometimes it just does not happen. So I am willing to try this new method of eating and hopefully will see some major results in the next year. Looking forward to trying this out and I will keep you posted. That's awesome, and yes, it's about time you stick to eating "clean". I know how hard this is with the holidays coming up and I have been making this same mistake. Also, take comfort that if you gain back some of the weight you won't be as uncomfortable with that. Remember to drink more water, and smaller amounts of alcohol. I was with you until your picture (or actually google image search) when I was in your shoes. The first picture I saw was you standing on a sidewalk with a pair of pants that were clearly much too tight and stretched out in the back and were too close to your ass. Yes, that look was with a 3 day old wedding picture. My second thought was "Wait a 6d1f23a050
