The big ticket in gi rene.IMAX .Q: sqlite3: Error in Update Statement in Python I have tried to update certain columns of a table but I always get an error in the "Statement" given here SQLite database connection and update of data It says:

"Error: no such column: 2010" But this table does have a column called 2010. Here is my code:

sqlite3.connect("database.db") con = sqlite3.connect("database.db") cur = con.cursor() cur.execute("SELECT name, address, number, 2010, 2040, 2021 FROM database") for row in cur.execute("SELECT name, address, number, 2010, 2040, 2021 FROM database"): print(row) cur.execute("UPDATE database SET name = '"+row["name"]+"' WHERE 2010 = '2010'") #sqlite3.commit() cur.execute("SELECT name, address, number, 2010, 2040, 2021 FROM database")

Is this a problem with my data base connection or am I using the wrong syntax? A: You are using a single-quoted string, meaning that the backslash is interpreted as an escape character, hence the Error: no such column: 2010. The correct way to use single-quoted strings is to enclose your value in single quotes: cur.execute("UPDATE database SET name = '"+row["name"]+ c6a93da74d
