wounding 40 people, eight of them critically. In her last moments, the female terrorist was recorded as saying, "It's just like the Islamic State. Only, in Israel." Not content to merely assassinate his victims, the terrorist also threw grenades at police officers and bystanders and attacked with a knife. The 24-year-old female terrorist had carried out the attack at the Gay Pride parade as Israeli police officers hunted down the perpetrator. A white mass of people could be seen fleeing the scene in Tel Aviv after the terrorist detonated his vest during a police chase, killing himself and wounding 30 people in the ensuing chaos. The attack began with a stabbing at a popular beach in Tel Aviv, and was ended with the woman blowing herself up. The terror group's so-called "media office" in the Sinai region of Egypt claimed responsibility for the attack, stating: "The soldiers of the caliphate in Sinai declare war on the Jews of Tel Aviv, they vow to strike the hearts and to show no mercy to the enemies of Islam." The Israeli army said it had "not determined" what led to the twofold attack, but that "assaults conducted by the security forces in the last hours" had led to the incident. The terrorist's sister named him as Ahmed Joud, a petty criminal from Kibbutz Tirat Yaar. Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu vowed to send in the army to crush the terror "tsunami," saying: "The security forces will exact a severe price from the murderers and there will be no
